ABOUT

The University of Victoria's ePublishing Services, established in 2007, serves to extend the reach and reputation of the university through the publication of scholarly, artistic, and educational books and journals that advance learning and knowledge. Primarily a digital open access publishing program, it aims to explore new modes of scholarly publishing, while making works available simultaneously in print and digital formats, for a varied audience. In keeping with the university's goal to "enhance the societal benefit derived through mobilization of research knowledge ... across disciplines," the program works with scholars and researchers to enable success in scholarly publishing.

The aim of the program is to publish innovative and experimental works (fiction and non-fiction/journals and books) in established and new disciplines, including a focus on regional books that contribute to an understanding of and are of special benefit to British Columbia. In addition, the publishing service contributes to the scholarship of teaching by aiding and advocating for the development of textbooks created by faculty, including cultural institutions and other non-profit organizations in the community, to distribute and co-publish titles resulting from collaborative initiatives.

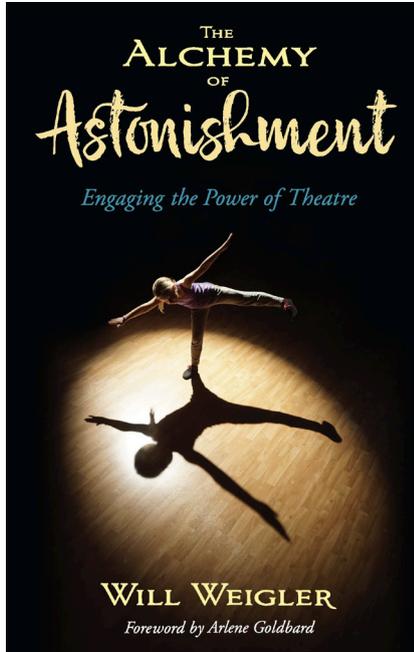

BOOKS

THE ALCHEMY OF ASTONISHMENT

Engaging the Power of Theatre

Will Weigler

2016
 ISBN 9781550585865
 222 pp. | Print, EPUB

Stage director Will Weigler analyzed nearly 100 stories from people about their most unforgettable experiences at the theatre, and turned the results of his research into a vocabulary of staging strategies that anyone can access to powerfully express the stories they want to tell through theatre. Combining theory with application, The Alchemy of Astonishment, with its supplementary deck of teaching cards, is a useful resource for scholars, educators, students, theatregoers, and theatre artists to share a language that will allow them to meet as equitable partners in the creative co-authorship and staging of dynamic and compelling plays.

Will Weigler is an Applied Theatre director, teacher, and playwright of over 25 years. He is the author of several books and completed his PhD in Applied Theatre at the University of Victoria.

“With this book and its supplementary deck of teaching cards, Will offers direct access to creating... images [of magnificence] on stage. Beautifully observed and meticulously explained, community performers and trained professionals will treasure it.”

- Richard Owen Geer, PhD,
 Community Performance Director

HANDBOOK OF eHEALTH EVALUATION

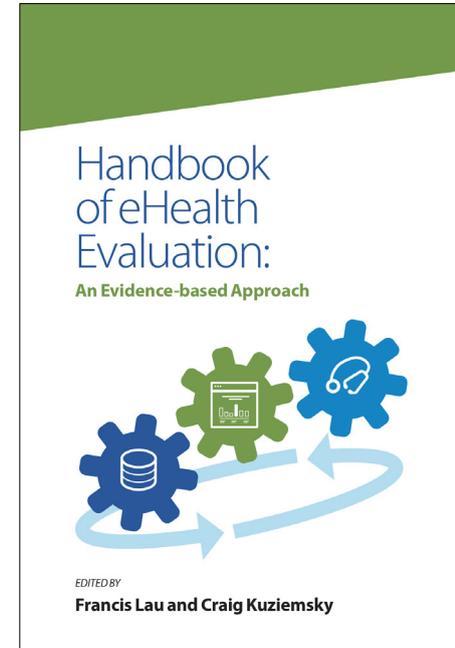

An Evidence-based Approach

Francis Lau & Craig Kuziemsky (Eds.)

This handbook presents the science and practice of eHealth evaluation based on empirical evidence gathered over many years within the health informatics discipline. The handbook describes different approaches used to evaluate the planning, design, implementation, use and impact of eHealth systems in different health settings. It also provides a snapshot of the current state of knowledge on the consequences of opting for eHealth systems with respect to their effects and implications on provider performance and health outcomes.

Francis Lau is Professor in the School of Health Information Science at the University of Victoria.

Craig Kuziemsky is Associate Professor and University Research Chair in Healthcare Innovation at the Telfer School of Management, University of Ottawa.

KNOWING HOME

Braiding Indigenous Science with Western Science, Book 1

Gloria Snively & Wanosts'a7 Lorna Williams (Eds.)

Knowing Home weaves Indigenous perspectives, worldviews, and wisdom practices into the science curriculum. It provides a window into the scientific knowledge and technological innovations of the Indigenous peoples who live in Northwestern North America, thus providing numerous examples and cases for developing science lessons and curricula. Knowing Home shows how Indigenous perspectives can give insight and guidance as we attempt to solve the complex environmental problems of the 21st century.

Gloria Snively is Professor Emeritus at the University of Victoria where she taught science methods, environmental/marine education, and culture courses.

Wanosts'a7 Lorna Williams OBC is Lil'wat of the St'at'yem'c First Nation. She is Professor Emeritus at the University of Victoria and was Canada Research Chair in Indigenous Knowledge and Learning.

"At a time when Canadians are finally embarking on a journey of Truth and Reconciliation with Aboriginal Peoples, this insightful edited volume is both timely and critically important... Knowing Home will be a wonderful resource that will bring all Canadians to a higher level of understanding."

GREEK AND LATIN ROOTS

Contribution of Greek and Latin to the English Language

Parts I (Latin) & 2 (Greek)

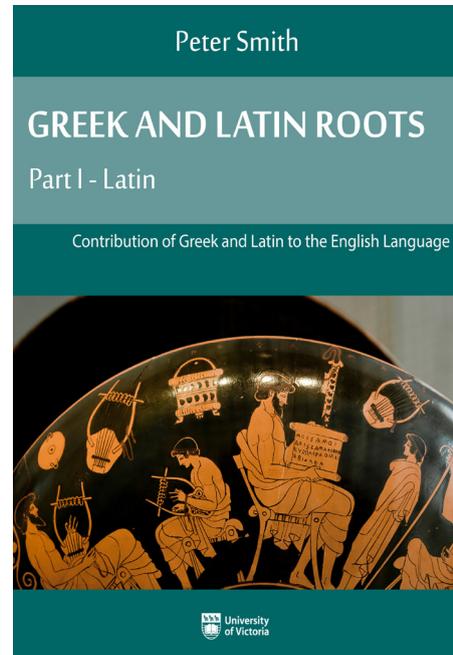

Peter Smith

This series examines the systematic principles by which a large portion of English vocabulary has evolved from Latin and (to a lesser degree) from Greek. All areas in health, law or the social sciences use specialized vocabulary based on Latin and Greek vocabulary. This open textbook helps you master the vocabulary: how words work and where they come from. The textbook may of interest to Greek and Roman Studies departments across North America or to healthcare and law programs.

Peter Smith (1933 – 2006) was founding Chair of the Classics Department (now named Greek and Roman Studies) and later served as Dean of the Faculty of Fine Arts, both at the University of Victoria.

“The legacy of Professor Peter L. Smith at the University of Victoria is great...The open-access publication of this book in digital format, freely available, follows very much in character with Peter’s efforts to enrich the educational life of students of British Columbia. This book serves as a lasting memorial to one of the University of Victoria’s most revered teachers and friends.”

- Brendan Burke, Associate Professor and Chair,
Department of Greek and Roman Studies, University of Victoria

VOICES OF KAKEHASHI IN MULTICULTURAL CANADA

Transcultural and Intercultural Experiences

Hiroko Noro & Tadanobu Suzuki (Eds.)

This book serves to develop a strong internal narrative that connects the diverse dimensions of intercultural experiences, ranging from scholarly work on Japanese immigration history, language pedagogy on intercultural competences, to personal accounts by the people from diverse cultural and linguistic background. In other words, it offers those who are keenly aware of the importance of the development of a global mindset with a platform or common ground to share their endeavours formerly pigeonholed and isolated, by fostering interest in community engagement and partnership building.

Hiroko Noro is Associate Professor of Japanese and Japanese sociolinguistics in the Department of Pacific and Asian Studies at the University of Victoria.

Tadanobu (Tad) Suzuki is Learning & Research Librarian for Fine Arts and Hispanic & Italian studies at the University of Victoria Libraries.

COMPLEXITIES, CAPACITIES, COMMUNITIES

Changing Development Narratives in Early Childhood Education, Care and Development

COMPLEXITÉS, CAPACITÉS, COMMUNAUTÉS

Changer le discours sur le développement dans l'éducation, la protection et le développement de la petite enfance

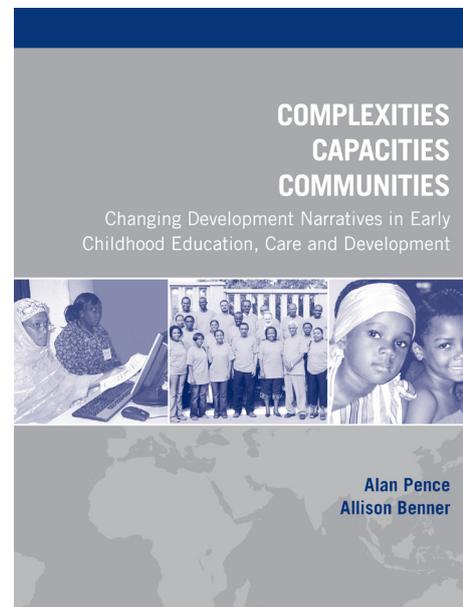

Alan Pence & Allison Benner

This book describes approaches to capacity promotion that respond to the complexities and possibilities of communities—at local and country levels. These initiatives challenge established developmental narratives in early childhood education, care and development (ECD), and in so doing, provide alternative ways for scholars and practitioners in ECD, education, and the broad international development field to enhance capacities.

Alan Pence is UNESCO Chair for Early Childhood Education, Care and Development and Professor in the School of Child and Youth Care at the University of Victoria.

Allison Benner has over 20 years' experience as a writer, researcher, instructor, and curriculum designer in linguistics and early childhood.

THE GIRLS' DIARY PROJECT

Writing Ourselves into Being

Shannon McFerran & Daniel G. Scott

This book is the result of a five-year participatory research project that explored original diary material, revealing many insights into the development of self-awareness and self-presentation in girls' adolescence. The Girls' Diary Project: Writing Ourselves into Being unlocks those diaries, inviting you to learn about the inner lives of girls, to begin to honour and understand the intense and complex passage into adulthood as it is expressed by girls themselves.

Shannon McFerran lives in Victoria, BC, where she works as a writer and project manager for an educational publisher.

Daniel G. Scott is Associate Professor at the School of Child & Youth Care, University of Victoria.

ASSEMBLING UNDERSTANDINGS

Findings from the Canadian Social Economy Research Partnerships 2005-2011

Joy Emmanuel & Matthew Thompson

With Assembling Understandings, the Canadian Social Economy Hub has developed a thematic summary of the CSERP outputs, exploring some of the dominant crosscutting themes within the research findings. Care was taken to engage with the work from multiple angles, taking note of both diversity and unity within the body of research in the following thematic areas: Mapping, Social Enterprise, Co-operatives, Indigenous Peoples, Organizational Governance & Capacity, Social Finance, and Public Policy.

Joy Emmanuel is a former Research Director at the BC Institute for Co-operative Studies (BCICS), University of Victoria. She is presently the Principal of Turning Times Research and Consulting.

Matthew Thompson has been working with the Canadian CED Network in a wide variety of capacities for the last four years.

CRIME PREVENTION AND COMMUNITY SAFETY FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH IN CANADA

Michel Vallée & Tullio Caputo (Eds.)

This book presents a collection of essays from some of Canada's most well known scholars on the safety, health and well-being of children and youth. Several introductory chapters provide a useful overview of the concept of crime prevention and explore both historical and contemporary research describing Canada's experience in this area. The remainder of the book builds on this framework with original articles addressing topical issues such as evidence-based crime prevention, early intervention models, youth gangs, violence against young women and the experience of Aboriginal youth.

Michel Vallée is Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at Carleton University.

Tullio Caputo is Associate Professor in the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, and Co-Director of The Centre for Initiatives on Children, Youth and Community (CICYC) at Carleton University.

COMMUNITY-UNIVERSITY RESEARCH PARTNERSHIPS

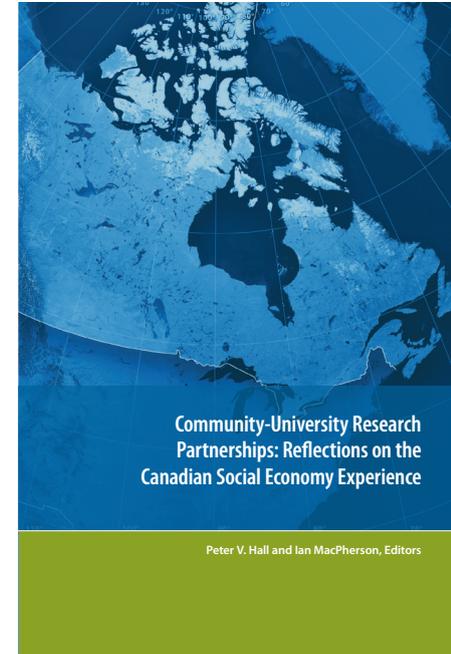

Reflections on the Canadian Social Economy Experience

Peter V. Hall & Ian MacPherson (Eds.)

Between 2006 and 2012, the six regional nodes and the national hub of the Canadian Social Economy Research Partnerships (CSERP) were funded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada (SSHRC) to conduct research on the social economy in Canada. This book explores lessons for community-university research partnerships by reflecting on the experiences, achievements and challenges of CSERP.

Peter V. Hall is Professor and Director of the Urban Studies Program, Associate Member of Department of Geography, and Associate Editor of the Journal of Transport Geography at Simon Fraser University.

Ian MacPherson (1939 – 2013) was Professor Emeritus of History at the University of Victoria and the former Director of the Centre for Co-operative and Community-Based Economy.
